

Michael Copps has been travelling around the US trying to let the public know about this June 2nd vote - the major media has not been giving him much opportunity. His staffers have told him that of 18,000 comments filed so far by individuals, "they have not found one that supports relaxing our protections." Yet the other commissioners charge ahead with no plan to let the public in on the secret - and with every intention of opening the market to more corporate conglomerates. I support his objections!
